Dems Reach Deal on Health Tax

Friday could bring final agreement on insurance legislation

Washington

In a major breakthrough, union leaders bowed Thursday to White House demands for a new tax on high-cost health plans as part of landmark health care legislation taking final shape in intensive negotiations.

The tentative agreement on the tax, which included significant concessions by the administration, was disclosed as leading lawmakers set an informal timetable of Friday for an agreement on the health care bill.

Democrats expressed the hope that the agreement would quickly open the way for progress on other key issues where House and Senate-passed bills differ.

The fast-paced events came as senior lawmakers went to the White House for the second straight day of bargaining over terms of a final compromise, and Obama gave a rousing speech to rank and file House Democrats in a late-afternoon appearance at the Capitol.

Referring to polls that show lagging support for the legislation, he told Democrats, "I know how big a lift this has been."

In remarks that look ahead to the fall campaign, he added, "If Republicans want to campaign against what we've done ... that is a fight I want to have."

The day's events underscored the urgency with which the White House and top Democrats were working, and the tentative agreement on a new tax on high-cost plans was the most prominent fruit of the effort.

"This was a very critical issue that had to be resolved, and I think it has been," said Rep. Rob Andrews, D-N.J.

In a significant victory for unions, the 40 percent excise tax would not apply to policies covering workers in collective bargaining agreements, state and local workers, and members of voluntary employee benefit associations through Dec. 31, 2017. (AP)

Scientists Set Humanity's Doomsday Clock Back One Minute

For 'Miracle' Survivors, Anxiety Lingers

Passengers struggle to cope with trauma from near-fatal flight

New York

Months after the crash, Doreen Welsh had a panic attack when she inhaled a little water in the shower. Anastasia Sosa no longer finds swimming fun — it feels too much like survival training. And Jorge Morgado can't bring himself to get back on a plane.

A year after the 155 people aboard the crippled US Airways Flight 1549 survived a splash-landing on the frigid Hudson River, some are suffering the psychological aftereffects of their terrifying descent and harrowing evacuation.

While many have spoken of a newfound appreciation for life and a focus on family, some also are struggling to regain their balance emotionally.

"It was a real breaking point for me," said Sosa, who believed her husband and two young children would die with her.

In what became known as the Miracle on the Hudson, Capt. Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger ditched his Airbus A320 in the river on Jan. 15, 2009, after a collision with a flock of birds.

Passengers wait to be rescued on the wings of a US Airways jet on Jan. 15, 2009.

On Friday, the anniversary, Sullenberger and some of the survivors will take a boat out to the place where they were pulled soaked and freezing from the water, and at the moment of impact they will raise their glasses in a toast.

Many survivors, including Mark

Hood, speak mostly about the positive outlook they gained from their brush with death.

"There is really, really nothing in life to fear," he said. "I feel like every day is a bonus no matter how difficult the problems that are thrown at you or at me."

Many of the survivors of Flight 1549 have gone back to their jobs. Some participate in an e-mail group, sharing their progress. Two survivors, Laura Zych and Ben Bostic, have even fallen in love.

The group surprised some observers with what they have chosen not to do: No one on board the plane has sued the airline.

Ex-Weapons Inspector Charged in Child-Sex Sting

Philadelphia

A longtime U.N. weapons inspector who blamed a 2001 sex-sting arrest on his criticism of the Iraq war has again been charged in an online child-sex case, and this time he was caught on camera.

Scott Ritter, 48, of Delmar, N.Y., engaged in a sexually graphic online chat with an undercover police officer posing as a 15-year-old girl nearly a year ago, police in northeastern Pennsylvania said.

Monroe County authorities

traced the exchange to Ritter through a cell phone number he provided and confirmed the match through photographs, according to a police affidavit. Charges were filed in November, and the Pocono Record revealed Ritter's involvement on Thursday.

Ritter, born William Scott Ritter Jr., served as a U.N. weapons inspector from 1991 to 1998 before resigning. He soon became a harsh critic of President George H.W. Bush's push toward war with Iraq.

Trump says "BUY NOW!"

Secure Your Financial Future in 2010

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

- ➡ Mortgage rates are at historic lows.
- ➡ Banks are overrun with foreclosures and unloading properties to smart investors at unprecedented discounts.
- ➡ Real estate prices have hit bottom, creating a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for you to profit.
- ➡ The window of opportunity is closing—next year could be too late!

Have you ever asked yourself...

"What would my life be like now if I had invested in real estate during the down market of the early 1990s?"

If you know someone who did buy investment properties during those days, you know that your life might be very different if you had done the same. Maybe you watched with envy as they created monthly cash flow, realized their dreams of passive income, and quit their job forever. Many of those investors are now multimillionaires.

What you may not know is that, right now—in 2010—you have a unique opportunity to do the same. Why?

Extraordinary market circumstances have created unprecedented opportunity for investors—but only those armed with the right information will know how to seize this moment.

In recovering markets like San Diego, Las Vegas, Phoenix, and Orlando, the demand for foreclosed and lower priced homes has spiked.

— Lawrence Yun, Chief Economist
National Association of Realtors

We're witnessing the largest real estate liquidation in history. An unparalleled window of opportunity has opened, but history tells us it will not stay open forever. We're advising people to buy—but not to buy blindly. You must have a proven game plan.

The Bust is a Boon: From California to D.C., falling home prices and cheaper mortgage rates are making dream homes possible.

— CNNMoney

Don't miss this chance to attend a wealth-building Trump workshop that will empower you to be the one who wins in this downturn. No matter what stopped you from profiting with real estate in the past, it doesn't have to stop you now!

This is your chance to change your financial future in 2010!

Don't miss it!

HERE'S WHAT THESE TRUMP STUDENTS HAD TO SAY ABOUT THE FREE WORKSHOP:

"My experience was nothing less than spectacular with the Trump people. The wisdom they brought out in me and the concepts they taught me are forever bestowed inside me. I will always be most grateful and indebted to their fantastic staff."

— Charlie D., Bullhead City, AZ

"Excellent training for a beginner like me who had no real estate experience."

— Ramon L., Los Angeles, CA

"I have never attended a workshop that I hung on to every word, fearful that I would miss something if I left the room for a minute. This was the most engaging seminar I have attended. Thank you!"

Tense Democrats Scramble in Mass.

Republican mounts aggressive campaign for open Senate seat

Boston

President Obama and the family of Edward M. Kennedy pushed Thursday to keep a Democrat in the late senator's seat and protect a 60th vote needed to pass the health care bill that would be Kennedy's legacy.

The stepped-up involvement of two Democratic powerhouses reflected the degree to which Obama's party worried about a race that a week ago looked like a lock for Democrat Martha Coakley.

Stopping short of a visit to the state, Obama made his first foray into the race, asking his political backers in an e-mailed video to support Coakley in what's become a competitive race against Republican Scott Brown.

Republicans claim they have the momentum closing in on Tuesday's special election, and Democrats fear a loss could not only cost them the health care bill but also the rest of the president's legislative agenda heading into critical mid-term elections this fall. Brown has said that if elected, he would provide the 41st vote needed to effectively kill the health care bill.

Coakley

The burst of activity came a week after Vicki Kennedy staged what many had expected to be her only public involvement in the campaign, a glitzy endorsement event on behalf of Coakley.

Since then, Brown has waged an aggressive campaign for the seat, and national partisans of all stripes poured into the state after he was widely seen as beating Coakley in their final debate on Monday.

Chavez Halts Blackout Plans In the Capital

Caracas, Venezuela

President Hugo Chavez suspended rolling blackouts in Venezuela's capital a day after they began and sacked his electricity minister, saying officials imposed a rationing plan riddled with mistakes.

Chavez's announcement late Wednesday was a significant shift in his attempts to avoid a widespread power collapse in the coming months through rolling blackouts of up to four hours a day throughout the country. Other rationing measures are to remain in place, including outages in other areas.

The rolling blackouts have been unpopular in a city already plagued by violent crime, traffic and trash-strewn streets, and opposition leaders accused Chavez on Thursday of backtracking to try to head off damage to his political support. (AP)

World11 Iraqis Guilty of Blasts

Attackers sentenced to death by hanging for August bombings

Baghdad

An Iraqi court Thursday sentenced 11 people to death by hanging after convicting them of carrying out the Aug. 19 bombings of two government ministries that killed more than 100 people in the heart of Baghdad.

The attacks — the deadliest to that point in more than a year and a half — raised questions about the ability of Iraqi forces to protect the country. They came less than two months after the U.S. handed over control of the country's cities to local security forces.

The bombings and two more massive attacks since have shaken Iraqis' confidence in Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, who has staked his political reputation on keeping Iraq safe as he seeks to secure a second term.

The swift convictions were announced less than two months before Iraqis vote in a nationwide parliamentary election.

A man cries as he rides in a police truck after a bombing in Najaf, Iraq, Thursday. A series of blasts struck Najaf hours after a court convicted 11 Iraqis of August attacks.

Meanwhile ...

Iraq's electoral commission on Thursday barred 500 candidates from running in March's poll, including a prominent Sunni lawmaker. Hamdia al-Hussaini, a commissioner on the Independent High Electoral Commission, said the decision was made after the group received the list from a parliament committee that vets candidates for ties to Saddam Hussein's outlawed Baath Party. (AP)

Just hours after the sentences were announced, a series of deadly bombs struck the holy Shiite city of Najaf, underscoring the challenges facing Iraq's security forces.

At least three people were reported killed and scores more injured, though the death toll could rise.

"I expect more injured people will die because they were wounded seriously," said Dr. Mohammed al-Kharsan, director of al-Hakim hospital in Najaf. ADAM SCHRECK (AP)

Attack Targets Israelis in JordanNaour, Jordan

A roadside bomb exploded Thursday near a convoy of Israeli diplomats traveling through Jordan on their way home for the weekend, but no one was hurt, officials in both countries said.

Ambassador Daniel Nevo was not in the convoy, Israeli officials in Jerusalem said. There was no immediate claim of responsibility.

It was the first time a roadside bomb was used in an attack in Jordan, where suicide bombings and shootings have targeted foreigners in recent years. The method is widespread in neighboring Iraq.

The sundown attack also exposed a security breach for Israeli diplomats, who are usually escorted by security personnel from both countries and use different routes and departure times during their occasional travels in Jordan.

The explosion ripped through the right side of a curvy road cutting through hilly villages on the western outskirts of the capital, Amman. The blast left a large hole about 3 feet deep and damaged a highway guardrail.

Jordanian forensic officers were inspecting the site of the attack, a security official said. The area is halfway from the King Hussein-Al-lenby Bridge over the Jordan River, which links Jordan with Israel and the West Bank. (AP)

Washington

Metro General Manager John B. Catoe Jr. on Thursday announced his resignation, effective April 2, in the wake of train crashes, worker fatalities and other safety lapses in the past year that created what he called "an unhealthy distraction."

ers know when it's time for leadership change. I hope I fall into the latter category."

Catoe said he made the decision about a week ago and informed Metro's Board of Directors about his decision in a letter on Thursday morning at a scheduled board meeting.

The resignation concludes a three-year tenure that began with high hopes of ending turmoil in the nation's second-busiest subway system. When he was hired, Catoe became the fourth general manager in two years.

Catoe was often praised for his leadership and was rewarded last fall with a new contract, even as fatal accidents and embarrassing revelations continued to arise.

Board Chairman Jim Graham thanked Catoe for his work. "We appreciate his stewardship during this difficult time, and we will miss his leadership," Graham said. LENA H. SUN AND ANN SCOTT TYSON (THE WASHINGTON POST)

D.C. Judge Nixes Gay Marriage Referendum

Washington

A District of Columbia judge has thrown out a lawsuit by opponents of gay marriage against the city's elections board.

The plaintiffs, led by Maryland pastor Bishop Harry Jackson, sued after the Board of Elections and Ethics refused to put their initiative on the ballot. The measure would have defined marriage as between a man and a woman. The board ruled that it violated the city's Human Rights Act.

D.C. Superior Court Judge Judith N. Macaluso ruled in favor of the city Thursday. She said the board was right to turn down the initiative because it would, in effect, authorize discrimination, which violates the Human Rights Act.

Last year, gay marriage opponents lost a lawsuit on a similar ballot initiative for the same reason. (AP)

A Desperate Time in Haiti

Disorder slows the global effort to get relief to survivors of Tuesday's quake

Port-au-Prince, Haiti

Doctors and search dogs, troops and rescue teams flew to this devastated land of dazed, dead and dying people Thursday, finding bottlenecks everywhere, beginning at a main airport short on jet fuel and ramp space and without a control tower.

The international Red Cross estimated 45,000 to 50,000 people were killed in Tuesday's cataclysmic earthquake, based on information from the Haitian Red Cross and government officials. Worries mounted, meanwhile, about food and water for the survivors.

From Virginia to China, a handful of rescue teams were able to get down to work, scouring the rubble for survivors. The silence of the dead was overwhelming in a city where uncounted bodies littered the streets, and dust-caked arms and legs reached, frozen and lifeless, from the ruins. Outside the General Hospital morgue, hundreds of collected corpses blanketed the parking lot, as the grief-stricken searched for loved ones. Brazilian U.N. peacekeepers, key to city security, were trying to organize mass burials.

From Europe, Asia and the Americas, governments, the U.N. and private aid groups were sending planeloads of high-energy biscuits and other food, tents, blankets, water-purification gear, heavy equipment for removing debris, helicopters and other transport, and teams of hundreds of search-and-rescue, medical and other specialists.

But two days after much of this ramshackle city was shattered, the global helping hand was slowed by the poor roads, airport and seaport of a wretchedly poor nation.

About 60 aid flights had arrived by mid-day Thursday, but they then had to contend with the chokepoint of an overloaded Tou-

A 'Small Miracle'

Searchers pulled a security guard alive from beneath the collapsed concrete floors of the U.N. peacekeeping headquarters, where many others were entombed. U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said the rescue of Estonian guard Tarmo Joveer was a "small miracle." But officials said 36 other U.N. personnel were missing. (AP) saint L'Ouverture International Airport. At midday, the Federal Aviation Administration said it was temporarily halting all civilian flights from the U.S. at Haiti's request, because the airport was jammed and jet fuel was limited for return flights.

Those that did land then had to navigate Haiti's inadequate roads, sometimes blocked by debris or by quake survivors looking for safe open areas as aftershocks still rumbled through the city. The U.N. World Food Program said the quake-damaged seaport made ship deliveries of aid impossible. Looting added to the concerns.

"We are all alone," Jules Hector, an older Haitian, told The Washington Post. "We cannot make contact with anyone — even people in other parts of Haiti." (AP)

Children receive medical treatment in Port-au-Prince on Thursday, two days after a massive earthquake devastated Haiti. Damaged roads and a backed-up airport made relief efforts nearly impossible.

"Before this disaster, Haiti had the best chance in my lifetime to fulfill its potential as a country, to basically escape the chains of the past 200 years. I still believe that if we rally around them now and support them in the right way, the Haitian people can reclaim their destiny."

Former president Bill Clinton, the U.N.'s special envoy to Haiti, striking an optimistic note in an editorial on Time magazine's Web site about the massive challenges that lay ahead for the Haitian people. President Obama has tapped Clinton and former president George W. Bush to lead private-sector fundraising efforts for the country.

Flood of Giving

- U.S. cell phone users' $5 million contribution to Haiti disaster relief represents by far the largest outpouring of philanthropic support via mobile devices in history.

Obama Orders Aid Effort Of Historic Proportions

Washington

President Obama and the U.S. moved to take charge in earthquake-ravaged Haiti on Thursday, dispatching thousands of troops along with tons of aid to try to keep order and to rescue the suffering in a country dysfunctional in the best of times.

Tested by the first large-scale humanitarian disaster of his presidency, Obama ordered a relief effort of historic proportions despite the deep strains it was sure to put on both the U.S. budget and on military forces who are already fighting two wars. He pledged an initial $100 million — with the likelihood of more later.

Obama announced that "the first waves" of the American response were in place Thursday, with two search-and-rescue teams on the ground, Coast Guard cutters in port, the U.S. Southern Command in control of the airport and airlifts bringing in urgently needed supplies and ferrying out the injured.

But the chief emphasis out of Washington was the huge amount of U.S. help that was still on the way — about a half-dozen ships and 5,500 troops making their way across the Caribbean.

Obama himself warned it would take hours, "and, in many cases, days," to get the full U.S. contingent to Haiti.

"None of this will seem quick enough if you have a loved one who's trapped, if you're sleeping on the streets, if you can't feed your children," Obama said. "So, today, you must know that help is arriving. Much, much more help is on the way." JENNIFER LOVEN (AP)

Lewis and Manning ready for a battle of wits in Indianapolis

Pro Football

Peyton Manning will spend Saturday night doing his usual work, barking instructions at the line of scrimmage.

Ray Lewis will try to match Manning word for word, jab for jab, audible for audible.

Their teammates have been through enough of these rounds to know it will be the most entertaining, and loudest, chess match of the divisional-round weekend. It's Peyton versus Ray, the sequel.

"It can get pretty chaotic out there," Colts left tackle Charlie Johnson said. "They've played against each other so many times that Peyton will make a check and then Ray will make a check and then Peyton will make another check. In a way, it's kind of fun to listen to."

In many ways, the resumes of Manning and Lewis look virtually the same. The Colts quarterback is the NFL's first four-time MVP. The Ravens linebacker is one of only four players in league history to earn two NFL defensive player of the year awards. Both have become playoff regulars, perennial

It will be a meeting of the minds when linebacker Ray Lewis leads the Baltimore Ravens against Peyton Manning and the Colts. The Ravens are 0-4 all-time in Indy.

"I have great respect for the way he prepares. I can tell by the way he plays how hard he prepares. It certainly shows up for his team on Sundays."

Pro Bowlers, Super Bowl champions and Super Bowl MVPs.

And now the Ravens (10-7) return to Indy (14-2), where they are 0-4 all-time and lost 31-3 last season in their only other appearance at Lucas Oil Stadium.

Lewis & Co. think they can change the script this time.

"It's a great matchup," Ravens coach John Harbaugh said. "Nobody's better than Peyton as far as recognizing defenses and making great decisions. ... I'm kind of biased toward Ray, obviously. He does that [getting the team in the right plays] and he does so many other things. He's a great leader." (AP)

ROAD TO THE CHAMPIONSHIP

Some big-name quarterbacks and a former Redskins coach have a lot to prove during this weekend's other divisional playoff games.

CARDINALS AT SAINTS

Drew Brees and the New Orleans Saints were the talk of the NFL as they marched to a 13-0 record. But their weakness in defense was exposed in the final three games of the season — all losses — and Arizona's Kurt Warner-Larry Fitzgerald isn't exactly a lightweight combination. (4:30 P.M., SATURDAY, FOX)

COWBOYS AT VIKINGS

Brett Favre's magical comeback ran into rough waters as he clashed with Minnesota coach Brad Childress late in the regular season. As the Vikings looked shaky, Tony Romo and the Cowboys emerged as the team playing the best football in the NFC late in the year. (1 P.M., SUNDAY, FOX)

JETS AT CHARGERS

Can Norv Turner lead a team to the Super Bowl? San Diego might be the favorite to emerge in the AFC if its often-inept coach doesn't stand in the way. On the Jets' side, coach Rex Ryan and quarterback Mark Sanchez have the Big Apple forgetting the Manning brother not in the playoffs. (4:30 P.M., SUNDAY, CBS)

REUNIONS

The Washington Redskins have hired Bobby Turner as running backs coach, reuniting Mike Shanahan with the assistant who helped the Denver Broncos establish one of the top ground games in the NFL. Turner spent the last 15 seasons as running backs coach with the Broncos, including 14 years under Shanahan. Since Turner arrived in 1995, Denver has produced more rushing yards than any team in the league. (AP)

Terps Put Their Trust in Vasquez

Terps Men's Hoops

After nearly 40 minutes of basketball, Gary Williams paces, sweats through his suit and watches the ball arc through the air.

How it completes that arc often is the difference between victory and defeat. At its simplest, the game is won and lost by the shooter.

Maryland, which next plays Boston College on Saturday, this week placed two games in the hands of Greivis Vasquez, the team's most prolific shooter.

The result? One win, one loss.

Against No. 18 Florida State on Sunday, Maryland (10-5, 1-1 in the ACC) jumped out to an early double-digit lead but as the game entered its final minutes, the Seminoles had cut that lead to just three points. That's when Vasquez, leading a transition, picked up his dribble just outside the three-point line, leaped and lofted a shot.

"I'm praying at this point," Williams said.

The conventional wisdom says it's not a smart shot. Vasquez didn't give his team a chance to run through a set offense and had no teammates underneath the basket to rebound should the ball clank off the rim.

In this case, it didn't. The shot was true, and it became the turning point that ended Florida State's run and sealed the victory.

"You think it's a bad shot, but I've been working on that shot, and I finally made it, and it changed the game," Vasquez said. "You have to be a man to take that shot."

Two days later, against Wake

Forest, Vasquez again put his team in position to win with his late-game shooting. The senior scored seven points in the final minutes of regulation to push the game into overtime.

In the extra period, however, Vasquez and the Terrapins were reminded that sometimes the ball's arc doesn't end where it was intended. And sometimes hot shooters go cold.

Vasquez made his first shot to put the Terrapins in the lead but then missed his next five field goals, including a forced 3-point attempt in the final seconds.

"There were two guys on him, and I guess he didn't see anybody open, so he took the shot," Williams said. "You want to put the ball in the hands of your best player if you can in that situation. At least I do." DEREK TURNER

SwengaliWizards Need a Change at the Top

In a little over a month, we're probably not going to recognize the Washington Wizards.

Team president Ernie Grunfeld will surely begin the rebuilding process by the Feb. 19 trade deadline. That means the few players Washington would like to keep around — and who haven't grossly embarrassed themselves and the team in the past month — are likely to be shipped out.

It was nice knowing you, Antawn and Caron. Sad as it is to say, Antawn Jamison and Caron Butler must be traded in order for the Wizards to stockpile draft picks and salary-cap space in the post-Gilbert Arenas era.

When Grunfeld's done dismantling

Grunfeld has managed to leave one of the NBA's worst franchises in worse shape than when he took it over.

the squad, maybe he could send himself elsewhere, too.

Somehow, Grunfeld has managed to leave one of the NBA's worst franchises in worse shape than when he took it over. Not only is the team a laughingstock to NBA fans, but now it's a joke in mainstream America, too.

Grunfeld not only condoned unprofessional behavior for years before the infamous gun joke; he hoped throwing money on the problem (Arenas) would somehow make it better. You don't build a team around a prankster, let alone one with injury problems.

The Wizards' new owner, whoever it will be, is going to start over. And that person will hopefully see that this joke of a team is a reflection of the team's laughably bad management.

Arenas Hit With Felony Charge

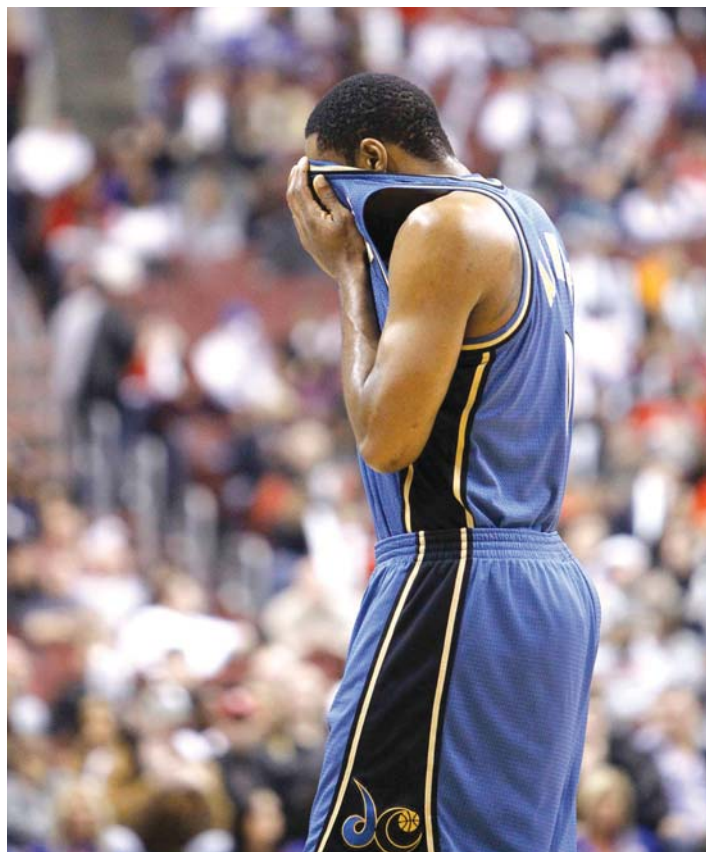

Wizards guard faces up to five years in jail for gun possession

The Wizards

Washington Wizards guard Gilbert Arenas was charged Thursday with felony gun possession, a crime that carries a maximum of five years in jail and a fine, authorities said. The charge was filed Thursday afternoon by the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia.

Arenas' attorney and prosecutors had been negotiating a plea deal during the day and it was not immediately clear whether the filing of charges was a part of the deal. Court officials said they had been told to prepare to have Arenas in Superior Court on Friday.

The U.S. Attorney's Office alleged that on Dec. 21, Arenas "did carry, openly and concealed on or about his person, in a place other than his dwelling place, place of business or on other land possessed by him, a pistol, without license issued pursuant to law."

The guns became an issue after Arenas and teammate Javaris Crittenton got into an argument after a card game and Crittenton allegedly said he should shoot Arenas in his surgically repaired left knee, sources have said. Days later on Dec. 21, at Verizon Center, Arenas placed the guns on a chair next to Crittenton's locker with a note that said "pick one."

A grand jury began hearing testimony in the case on Jan. 5. But Thursday's charge came directly from prosecutors and was not part of a formal indictment.

Also Thursday, Washington and Arlington police searched Crittenton's home looking for the gun he reportedly used in the locker room confrontation with Arenas, according to sources familiar with the investigation and court papers. Police did not find the gun at his Arlington home, Crittenton's lawyer and the court papers said. KEITH L. ALEXANDER (THE WASHINGTON POST)

United's Perkins: Back 'Where I Belong'

Major League Soccer

D.C. United dutifully followed a Washington football tradition and traded away its first-round pick in Thursday's MLS draft, but it's hard to find fault with a move that filled a pressing team need so effectively.

D.C. shipped the No. 7 overall selection, Brazilian midfielder Fred and money to expansion Philadelphia for the right to reacquire goalkeeper Troy Perkins, who excelled in two full seasons as United's starter before transferring to a club in Oslo in December 2007.

Perkins chose to return to MLS after two years with Valerenga that included a Norwegian Cup triumph in 2008. Philadelphia was first in line to bid for his services according to MLS' complicated allocation process but appears set in goal with former Maryland star Chris Seitz.

D.C.'s situation in net was far more complicated, with neither Josh Wicks nor Milos Kocić doing enough last season to cement the starting job. Now in exchange for an unproven prospect and an overpaid veteran midfielder, United can field a player who, at 28 and entering the prime of his career, is considered to have a very good shot at being the third goalie on the U.S. national team's World Cup roster this summer.

"To be able to raise a family in the States and to be back in the black and red, it's more than just a feeling. It's something deep in the heart and the soul. D.C. United is where things began and where I belong," Perkins said.

GM Dave Kasper said signing Perkins was a "priority of ours this off-season" and that the 2006 MLS goalkeeper of the year "will bring us leadership both on the field and in the locker room." United's defense often lacked that quality in 2009.

Philadelphia had three picks in the opening round Thursday and opened with Oregon State striker Danny Mwanga, who was the Pac-10 player of the year. Virginia midfielder Tony Tchani went second to New York. BRIAN STRAUS

Jamie Durie

GARDEN GURU, HOST OF "THE OUTDOOR ROOM"

Aussie-born, L.A.-dwelling landscape architect Jamie Durie doesn't just create backyards. He makes alfresco dream rooms: Japanese-style retreats with bubbling fountains, "Are-we-in-South-Beach?" poolscapes with slinky sofas and slinkier cabanas. The host of PBS' "The Victory Garden" (check listings) and outdoor pro on "Oprah" just launched an HGTV show, "The Outdoor Room" (Fri., 10 p.m.), which follows him planting green spaces around the world.

Travel inspires many of your landscapes, doesn't it?

I like going to age-old places like Ethiopia, where I am now. You can learn a lot from a nation like this, where people speak so many languages and the architecture is so different from our own.

Any fave places that you like to re-create in people's backyards?

I lean toward tropical or Med-style climates, since those cultures are always good at making the most of their outdoor spaces. Their architecture is very good at bridging the gap between outdoors and in.

You talk about doing outdoor rooms. How is that different from, say, having a great deck?

It's about trying to do the sort of things you do indoors outdoors, like putting in heated floors on a patio or a pizza oven on the terrace. Think of your backyard as an outdoor living room or lounge, an extension of your house.

What's the most unusual item you put in for folks on the show?

For one couple in L.A., we put a gorgeous claw-foot bathtub in their yard. It's both private and open to the sky, so they can take moonlit soaks.

What's your own backyard like?

I live in L.A., so there's so much I can do. I'm getting really into native plants and drought-resistant palms.

"Put a lamp or mirror on your deck. You're telling people you want them to spend time there."

How should I choose my outdoor furniture?

Don't just think about a dining table and chairs. Think lounge chairs or coffee tables. Shop your house, and, if you've got a space that isn't getting rained on, put a lamp or mirror on your deck. You're telling people you want them to feel comfortable and spend some time there. And if you buy wooden furniture, make sure it's from sustainable materials.

What about people with very small outdoor spaces, like balconies? What can they plant?

I like to fill planters with tall ornamental grasses that don't get clipped. It maximizes the space and creates almost a screen effect.

What's the key to finding plants that look good but don't die?

Go to the garden center and research what's native in your region. Those plants will require the least amount of effort to thrive. If you become an exotic gardener with plants that need more water and support, that's like pushing crap uphill, as we say back home.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

Last week, my very frugal husband became so fed up with this interminable winter that he booked us a cruise to Cozumel, leaving the second week of February. Now, I need sandals! — SUSAN

Manolo says, long ago, when the Manolo was very poor, he spent the few seasons living in the place with the very cold, very snowy winters. It was during this period of poverty, while the Manolo was forced to trudge many miles to obtain his daily crust of bread, that he grew to dislike excessive displays of winter.

Indeed, the Manolo remembers when, caught outdoors in the storm of sleet, he vowed to exact revenge upon Señor Jacque Frost. "To the last," the Manolo shouted, Ahab-like, to no one in particular. "The Manolo grapples with thee; from Saint-Tropez's heart the Manolo laughs at thee; for hate's sake, the Manolo sips his last piña colada at thee!"

Of the course, the wind did not listen, but still, the shouting was therapeutic, although, certainly not as therapeutic as going to Cozumel. Nor as therapeutic as the Valley from KORS by Michael Kors ($162, Zappos.com), the wedge sandals available in the rainbow of colors, although the Manolo is partial to white for Mexico.

Ask the Manolo a question at manolo@shoeblogs.com. Visit the Manolo at shoeblogs.com.

Bargain Binge

Get more fashion bang for your sales-season buck with the inside scoop on Internet discounts, chain stores with cheap scores and expert advice on separating the good deals from the bad buys

To some shoppers, a store sporting a “sale” sign resembles a fashion Disneyland, a magical place where dreams — of the “75 percent off Diane von Furstenberg dress” variety — can come true. Still, visions of clearance racks (and deep post-holiday or post-season discounts) have caused more than one deal-seeker to go home with items that’d make even Snow White look hideous. (Too small, Grinch-green cashmere sweater, why did we fall for you, even for $15?) “Don’t buy anything on sale that you wouldn’t pay full price for,” says Kathryn Finney, who blogs about getting the most for your retail dollars at Thebudgetfashionista.com. “We see 50 to 70 percent off signs, and they’re like red meat,” says Lisa Freeman, editor in chief of ShopSmart, a magazine devoted to bargain strategies.

Unlike last winter, with its rock-bottom deals (Manolos for $100!), this season, you won’t find Great Depression-like prices. Prudent retailers simply didn’t order as much merch, so there’s less inventory to discount. “The deals are not as stunning as last year,” says Alexandria personal shopper Kathryn Martin (kmartinpersonalshopper@gmail.com). “Now, 30 percent off is good.” In a way, this may make you a savvier shopper, she thinks. “Remind yourself of past things you’ve bought on sale that seemed good in the heat of the moment but that you never wore.”

Newer, techy ways to comparison shop might compensate for the lack of Crazy Eddie-low tags. “Many stores have coupons online or discounts if you sign up for their e-newsletters,” Freeman says. “Shame on you if you don’t check Macys.com before heading to the mall.” This season’s true must-have accessory — your iPhone or BlackBerry — can also help you check whether you’re getting the lowest possible price on, say, a dreamy pair of Loeffler Randall booties. Try Frucall.com, Shopstyle.com or an old-fashioned Google search before you buy.

Among the joys of sales: landing something unusual for less than usual, which means you may need to stalk your prey. “If you’ve already window-shopped something at full price, you’ll know what you want before it goes on sale,” Martin says. Think of this as retail recon, so you can pounce on that boho Trina Turk dress as soon as the price drops.

Here’s how our two pro clotheshorses scored January buys more charming than wicked.

The problem with a lot of modern romantic comedies is that the quirk starts too early. In “Leap Year,” we're asked to believe that you can reach Ireland from Wales in a catastrophic storm; a woman would wear 6-inch stilettos on a car trip (Shoes! Funny!); Amy Adams is heavy enough to start a car rolling backward; church weddings happen on Sundays; and carrots grow in backyard gardens. In February.

All that just isn't necessary. The best romance happens when the people and their circumstances are as real as possible, and the weirdness comes at the end, when we're rooting for them to overcome the impossible. Having them overcome shoe-related impossibility followed by cow-related impossibility followed by alcohol-related impossibility means that you've got to get more and more impossible as the story goes on. Keep it real, and love becomes a real possibility.

A stunning performance from Saoirse Ronan (above as Susie Salmon) is, unfortunately, not enough to save this film from being horribly muddled and misguided in tone.

Skeletal Adaptation

‘The Lovely Bones’ loses substance and focus on its journey from page to screen

Film Review

“The Lovely Bones” is anything but. Peter Jackson’s movie, based on the best-selling Alice Sebold novel, flagrantly disobeys the first law of adaptation and, indeed, of filmmaking in general: Get the tone right. And tone is the first thing sacrificed in this shapeless, overlong, mawkishly muddled pop-up illustration of a movie.

Part coming-of-age movie, part domestic melodrama, part thriller and part magical realist meditation on death, “The Lovely Bones” reaches desperately for style — inspired by everything from “Twilight” and “The Tele-tubbies” to bad 1970s van art — and in the process drops all pretense of substance.

That protagonist is Susie Salmon (Saoirse Ronan), who in a voice-over narration explains that she was murdered in 1973 at age 14 by a neighbor. Although Jackson (“The Lord of the Rings”) is far too canny a showman to miss a chance for gruesome exploitation, an impulse he indulges in agonizing sequences just before and just after the crime, most of “The Lovely Bones” transpires while Susie is in “the in-between,” a candy-colored no-man’s-land between heaven and Earth, where she watches her murderer (Stanley Tucci) hide in plain sight and her father (Mark Wahlberg) go mad with unresolved grief.

Jackson’s fans have been wondering how he would deploy the special effects he’s known for in the service of a story that has one foot in the supernatural and one in grounded realism. The answer is: awkwardly and without subtlety.

The two best performances in “The Lovely Bones” belong to Ronan, whose translucent blue eyes give her an appropriately otherworldly beauty, and Tucci, nearly unrecognizable under a sandy mustache and wire-rimmed glasses. But

‘The Lovely Bones’

- Director: Peter Jackson
- Stars: Saoirse Ronan, Mark Wahlberg and Stanley Tucci
- In a Nutshell: A father (Wahlberg) works to avenge the murder of his teenage daughter (Ronan) while she watches and narrates from a limbo called “the in-between.”
- For Fans of: “What Dreams May Come” and “Atonement” even these sturdy actors can’t bring focus to a film that never decides what it wants to be.

As “The Lovely Bones” lurches toward its eventual conclusion, the viewer’s befuddlement is likely to give way to anger, when the whole point of the movie seems to be for Susie not to miss her first sexual experience. And anger gives way to outright rage when, in the film’s most breathtakingly awful sequence, she meets her fellow murder victims in a golden nimbus of morbid sisterhood.

It’s a ghastly moment, and considering the wild shifts that have gone before, completely unearned. The movie feels like a juggernaut of literary pretension and cinematic overreach, run fatally aground.

ANN HORNADAY (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Origins
A Lovely Thought The title of the book comes from Susie Salmon’s reflections on the strength of her loved ones after her death: “These were the lovely bones that had grown around my absence: The connections — sometimes tenuous, sometimes made at great cost, but often magnificent — that happened after I was gone,” she thinks. “And I began to see things in a way that let me hold the world without me in it. The events my death brought were merely the bones of a body that would become whole at some unpredictable time in the future.”

Teddy Pendergrass, R&B star and ballad master, dies at 59

Obituary

Teddy Pendergrass, the R&B star who spent the last three decades of his life in a wheelchair, has died. He was 59.

Pendergrass died Wednesday in Philadelphia, his son Teddy Pendergrass II said. He had surgery for colon cancer eight months ago.

In the 1970s, the star became a sex symbol whose velvet voice drove songs such as "Close the Door" in 1978 and "Love T.K.O." in 1980. Both singles reached No. 1 on the U.S. R&B charts.

His soulful voice also led hits by Harold Melvin & the Blue Notes including "If You Don't Know Me by Now," another No. 1 from 1972: It sold 2 million copies. Fans in the

The fairer sex swooned over Pendergrass' "For Women Only" concerts.

PHILADELPHIA INTERNATIONAL RECORDS

1970s called him "the black Elvis" and "Teddy Bear."

Pendergrass had five-straight platinum albums. Then, in 1982, the brakes failed on his Rolls-Royce and the car rammed a tree.

Pendergrass said he spent years wondering how his life would have turned out without the car accident — until he realized it was best to use his experience to help others, not to ponder "what might have been."

Laughing Through Our Tears

The Golden Globes pairs dark films with a lighthearted guy

Awards

A loose and cheeky tone is typical for the Golden Globes (8 p.m., NBC, Sun.). Yet Hollywood's first major prize show on the road to the Academy Awards has plenty of heavy drama for the hard times we live in. Three films with war-on-terror angles scored nominations, led by critical darling "The Hurt Locker," which is among the best dramatic picture contenders.

Also competing Sunday for that honor is the tough Harlem drama "Precious: Based on the Novel 'Push' by Sapphire" and the recession-era tale "Up in the Air."

And for the first time in more than a decade, there will be a master of ceremonies. Ricky Gervais, star of "Extras" and the original British version of "The Office," was picked as host of the Globes.

Gervais has promised some "gentle ribbing," principally aimed at "anyone younger and thinner and richer and more attractive than me."

"I can't wait to see Ricky Gervais do his thing," said Neil Patrick Harris, a Globe nominee for "How I Met Your Mother." "I think they chose the perfect guy." DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

Nightlife ➤ Agenda

WHAT DO YOU WANT TO DO TONIGHT? BY FRITZ HAHN, RHOME ANDERSON AND DAVID MALITZ

FRIDAY

Diddy's in town, which means there's going to be a party with bottles and models and people who look like they could be models and folks who wish they could throw down a few grand on one night out but will settle for having a few drinks in the same building as Sean Combs and his reflected glory. Love is still closed, so the venue for this Ciroc-sponsored celebration is THE PARK. Get there early, and not just to beat the inevitable cluster at the front door: There are free drinks from 5 to 6 p.m., then $5 premium drinks and free hors d'oeuvres from 6 to 8 p.m. (The guest of honor, of course, will be showing up well after that.) Get on the guest list by using the Park's Web site; send an e-mail to Fridays@Park14.com to avoid getting left on 14th Street.

SATURDAY

The brothers Hays and Ryan Holladay of Bluebrain have already done the traditional guitar-based indie-rock band thing with the Epochs.

Diddy will be at the Park tonight, setting the tone for a bottles and models evening.

They even lived in Brooklyn while doing it. So, it doesn't come as much of a surprise that they tired of that tried-and-true setup and that their new project is as much a concept as a band. The band's biggest feat to date was September's boom box project in Dupont Circle where the band and a few dozen cohorts created a performance art cacophony. Tonight's show will also feature Outputmessage, one of the city's best electronic music acts, and a DJ set from Autorock. The whole thing's free at THE FRIDGE.

SUNDAY

Long weekends mean one-off

events designed to get people to come out on a night when they'd usually stay in. Sunday night, for example, the Dynamite party at LITTLE MISS WHISKEY'S means DJ Nitecrawler leaves his monthly Moneytown throwdown behind for what he promises will be "60s, '70s and '80s Funk & Soul of all types." We'll trust him on that, seeing how much we enjoy Moneytown and the Breakin' Glass dance nights at Wonderland. Besides, it's free — what do you have to lose?

AVATAR (PG-13, 161 minutes) As James Cameron proved in 1997's "Titanic," he has a penchant for melding spectacle and old-fashioned storytelling. Here, the narrative fulcrum is a classic boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl romance. Is the dialogue corny? You bet. Does the movie go kerblooey in its final moments, during a ferocious, explosive firefight that will leave your eyeballs bleeding? Uh-huh. But Cameron has delivered what he promised with "Avatar": an ambitious, fully immersive cinematic experience. (AH) have to be a fan of Waylon Jennings, Kris Kristofferson, Merle Haggard, Townes Van Zandt, Doug Sahm and sundry other Texans and twangers to love this film. But it sure can't hurt. All those musicians are invoked by Jeff Bridges in this lovely, bittersweet romantic drama, in which he virtually channels country music's most storied outlaws, rule-benders and heartbreakers. Bridges plays Bad Blake, a grizzled singer-songwriter now performing on the Southwestern bowling alley circuit. Watching Bad on his way down makes for a pitiful sight, especially when he shows up drunk for a gig and momentarily leaves the stage to throw up in a garbage can. But thanks to a compassionate, self-aware performance by Bridges and the superbly restrained filmmaking of first-time writer-director Scott Cooper, the film never wallows in self-pity or romanticized excess. (AH)

tain of the South African rugby team the Springboks, which in 1995 won the World Cup. The movie tells the story of that unlikely and politically crucial victory, which as much as anything was the result of the gentle coaxing and adamant moral suasion of the country's new president, Nelson Mandela. Morgan Freeman doesn't play Mandela as much as inhabit the man, in a performance that seems to embody the very transcendence that Mandela himself has come to stand for. (AH)

THE IMAGINARIUM OF DOCTOR PARNASSUS (PG-13, 122 minutes) Shot through with a bold, extravagant generosity of spirit, this journey behind the literal and figurative looking glass marks a gratifying return to form for Terry Gilliam. And, as Heath Ledger's last film, it arrives with particular poignancy, with Ledger managing to disappear into his role, while imbuing it with his singular presence and energy. The title character, played by a nearly unrecognizable Christopher Plummer, is an ancient street performer who oversees a ragtag band of buskers who ply the streets of contemporary London. But beware those who venture through the mirror behind him; they will find their imaginations in a cosmic moral tug of war between Parnassus and the malign Mr. Nick (Tom Waits), the kind of devil you can't help but dance and make deals with. (AH)

IT'S COMPLICATED (R, 199 minutes) As Jane and Jake Adler—10 years divorced and with three grown children, yet suddenly drawn back in each other's lives (and beds) after a drunken fling over the weekend of their son's (Hunter Parrish) college graduation—Alec Baldwin and Meryl Streep pick up the movie and run away with it. The writing and direction, by rom-com veteran Nancy Meyers ("Something's Gotta Give"), are deft enough. But it's Streep and Baldwin's gamely ribald performances, and their seemingly effortless, effervescent chemistry, that put the pep in this movie's highly choreographed, yet richly entertaining step. (MO)

LEAP YEAR (PG, 95 minutes) Leap year comes only once every four years. But if the new romantic comedy of the same name looks like something you just saw, you're not imagining things. The film—about a rich, neurotic New York woman, Anna (Amy Adams), who falls for a surly rube en route to a romantic rendezvous with her jerk boyfriend—is a retread of just about every rom-com cliché ever turned. After a series of credulity-straining mishaps Anna finds herself in the middle of nowhere in Ireland, chauffeured toward her destination by a countrified cabbie named Declan (Matthew Goode), sporting a scruffy beard and a fake-sounding brogue. (MO)

NINE (PG-13, 120 MINUTES) "Nine" bounces into theaters as a bright, shiny bauble of cinematic self-reference and mythologizing, begging so insistently to be loved that it winds up pushing the audience away. "Nine" is about Guido Contini (Daniel Day-Lewis), a legendary Italian filmmaker who in 1965, on the eve of directing his latest picture, finds himself creatively blocked and preoccupied with the women in his life, madonnas and whores alike. An insurmountable flaw of "Nine" is that it asks viewers so blithely to identify with a protagonist whose overwhelming ego, insecurity and selfishness they're meant to confuse with artistic genius. (AH)

SHERLOCK HOLMES (PG-13, 125 minutes) Directed by Guy Ritchie ("Rockn-Rolla") and starring Robert Downey Jr., the newest contribution to the world of Arthur Conan Doyle spin-offs is less a product of genuinely Holmesian DNA than, say, "Se7en." There's black magic here, too; Lord Blackwood (Mark Strong)—who has been going around London dispensing with people in ritualistic, occult executions—has apparently risen from the dead. In the plus column is Downey's performance. The actor gets one important thing just right. That's a sense of Holmes as a brilliant misfit, a kind of autistic savant who hears, sees and remembers everything. There's nothing terribly wrong with Jude Law's performance as Holmes's right-hand man, though he's considerably less stuffy than traditionally portrayed. (MO)

YOUTH IN REVOLT (R, 90 minutes) This coming-of-age sex comedy finds Michael Cera stuck in his same wispy, doe-eyed groove. Even Cera's biggest fans have to admit he has become something of a Johnny One-Note. In Miguel Arteta's adaptation of the C.D. Payne novel, audiences are still supposed to buy the 21-year-old Cera as high school student Nick Twisp, who lives in sex-obsessed misery with his divorced mother and her succession of loser boyfriends. When Nick meets the disquietingly frank Sheeni Saunders (Portia Doubleday) during a family getaway at a trailer park in California, he decides to do whatever it takes to be with her—a vow that will entail random acts of theft, arson, dorm-rule violations and cross-dressing. It's a story we've seen in better versions before. (AH)

2 Holiday Weekend

D.J. Dredd's battle dance parties are known and loved in the sector of D.C. that loves to boogie. They live on most long weekends, and this Sunday's fight features Prince versus Outkast. Really, battles shouldn't be allowed that don't include Michael Jackson, but we'll let that slide. F.Z. Black Cat, 1811 14th St. NW; Sun., 9 p.m., $13 in advance or $15 at the door; 202-667-4490, Blackcatdc.com. (U St.-Cardozo)

3 Vroom, Vroom

Whether you're in the market to buy or just to drool, the Washington International Motorcycle Show is the place to see more motorcycles than you've ever seen in your life, not counting that day at the truck stop in Amish Country when the Hells Angels met the Buggy Whips on a field of battle. F.Z. Washington Convention Center, 801 Mt. Vernon Place; Fri. 4-9 p.m.; Sat. 9:30 a.m.-8 p.m.; Sun. 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; $12-$30; 800-331-5706, Motorcycleshows.com. (Mt. Vernon Square)

Another Day in the Life

Bauer is back to work with a vengeance in season seven of '24'

Return

SUN 9:00 Jack Bauer must feel a bit like Michael Corleone. Every time he thinks he's out, he's pulled right back into CTU's troubles.

Lest we forget, the "24" hero last year first tried missionary work in Africa before being shipped back to D.C., where he was willing to go to prison for his naughty ways until he saved the day by exposing himself to nuclear radiation to stop a bomb.

Don't you see why this show's starting a seventh season with a two-day (Sunday and Monday), four-hour kickoff on Fox?

Bauer (Kiefer Sutherland) — now in New York, for those keeping track — has no dramatic escape plan set. Instead, he's ready to move back to Los Angeles to be near his daughter, Kim, and her family.

Bauer's quiet attempt to change tracks is put on hold when a bomb plot surfaces.

That is, until a person with key information on a plot to blow up the United Nations stumbles into Bauer's hotel room. From there, it's just a typical day in Bauer's life. He finds a young CTU agent (Freddie Prinze Jr.) he trusts, and then runs into some mishaps of his own.

Tech-wiz Chloe O'Brian (Mary Lynn Rajsak) is back and yet again facing inter-office competition, this time in the form of Katee Sackoff ("Battlestar Galactica"). Other regulars returning are President Taylor (Cherry Jones) and Renee Walker (Annie Wersching).

New faces include Mykelti Williamson (Bubba in "Forrest Gump") as head of CTU New York and Anil Kapoor ("Slumdog Millionaire") as the president of a Middle Eastern country. MATT SWENSON (EXPRESS)

Best Bets

FRI 8:00

Law & Order (NBC) When a journalist is found dead in an abandoned apartment, Detectives Lupo and Bernard's (Jesse L. Martin, left) investigation uncovers a relationship between the victim and a daytime talk show host (guest star Samantha Bee).

FRI 8:00

Supernanny (ABC) Jo, right, may be too late to help reverse the situation of Kristin Hallenbeck, a 25-year-old who expects her mother and father to raise her two children.

SUN 9:00

Big Love (HBO) Bill considers running for state senate while Margene confronts Nicki about her feelings for Ray.

SUN 10:00

The Jacksons: A Family Dynasty

(A&E) The brothers remain divided in this episode. Jackie and Marlon give up on performing, and Tito and Jermaine want to move forward. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

Premiere

Sacrificial Man

Adapted from a DC Comics book and graphic novel, the new action series "Human Target" (8 p.m., Fox, Sun.) follows Christopher Chance (Mark Valley, pictured), a unique private security guard who saves his clients' lives even if it means turning himself into a human target. Assisting him are Chance's business partner, Winston (Chi McBride), and Guerrero (Jackie Earle Haley, "Watchmen"), a hired gun. (TRIBUNE MEDIA)

DO YOU THINK GOOGLE SHOULD CLOSE DOWN ITS CHINESE SITE?

"Absolutely. Continuing to provide censored services in China goes against Google's core philosophy of providing universally accessible information. Trying to get a foothold in the market was a smart move, but it is clear the Chinese government will not change its stance anytime soon, and it would be more damaging to Google to remain."

Horoscope

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

The choices are many, and you'll want to be sure that you are coming to the table prepared to pick what is truly best for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Your schedule may be disrupted by the actions of someone who doesn't understand how it's all interrelated at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Personal preference is sure to come into question at some point. You needn't defend what you like and what you don't.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You are likely to benefit from an unusual association with someone from an episode in your past.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Patience is a virtue, especially when you are dealing with someone who doesn't know how to listen to what you have to say.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This is a good day to branch out and explore avenues that might have seemed forbidding to you not so long ago. You're feeling more confident now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The social scene is likely to offer more in the way of personal reward than expected. You'll want to accept those invitations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The support you're after may be slow in coming, but you have something up your sleeve that can win the day in the end.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You are usually suspicious of those who flatter, but you're in the mood to hear the good things about yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll find yourself in need of some catch-up; someone in charge is breathing down your neck and wants to see results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you're going to share, you're going to have to prepare yourself for a surprise: Something you get from someone else may not suit you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Recent events on the financial front may have you reconsidering a recent decision. It's not too late to change your course.

Samurai Sudoku

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.
